ANDERSON MEAT LITTLE CHEAPER

Government Figures for the Past Month Show That Butter Is Higher—Meat Cheaper

There is but little difference to be noticed in the local market, or in fact there is not much difference noticeable in any part of the state but the market quotations on meat, butter and potatoes has changed somewhat in the last month.

Butter prices in South Carolina last month were about the same as during May, 1912, according to data gathered by the federal government. The average for the country as a whole was 32 cents less than for the corresponding month of last year. Farm prices of eggs also show little variation. Chickens had farm price in South Carolina averaging 23 cents more than in May of last year.

The average price per 100 pounds paid to the producers of pork in South Carolina during April was $7.50, or 14 cents per 100 less than on April 15 of last year. This is true also of the country as a whole. The lowest state average, according to government data made public yesterday, is $6.10 in Florida and the highest is $9.60 in Rhode Island and Connecticut. North Carolina's average was higher than South Carolina's by 10 cents per 100 pounds.

Irish potatoes paid to the growers in South Carolina during April showed a decrease of 14 cents per bushel less than for the corresponding month of last year. The only other state reporting a decrease was Louisiana. The country as a whole reports an increase of 23.2 cents, or a gain over 1913 of about 48 per cent. Lowest prices prevailed in Idaho, Washington and Oregon.

HONORED ONE OF ANDERSON'S MEN

James D. Hammett of This City Was Selected For Important Duties at Washington

The American Cotton Manufacturers Association paid a splendid compliment to James D. Hammett, an Anderson man, in selecting him as a member of the committee to represent that body at a meeting of the Foreign Trades League which took place in Washington on Wednesday and Thursday. The committee was composed of some of the best known cotton mill men in the country, among these being: V. M. Montgomery, George A. Draper, Stuart W. Cramer and Henry E. Meiklehan. Capt. E. A. Smyth of Greenville was the chairman of the committee.

The Trades League held its meetings in the Hotel Raleigh at Washington to discuss matters of importance to the trade of the United States with foreign countries. Several plans were approved and adopted and will doubtless be put into use.

IMPORTANT DEAL IN REAL ESTATE

Large and Attractive Lot on North Main Street Changed Hands Yesterday

It was learned last night that there had been another important deal in real estate. C. A. Gambrell had disposed of his half interest in the lot on North Main street to Julius H. Anderson. The owner of the other half interest is M. M. Mattison.

The lot is one of the best in the city, and occupies the whole of a small square between the Bellevue Hotel corner and the Central Presbyterian church corner. The consideration could not be learned last night. The new purchaser is president of the Citizens' National Bank, which, since its consolidation with the Anderson Banking & Trust Company, has done a remarkable business, but whether or not this means a new bank building for Anderson remains to be seen. Mr. Anderson is one of the most progressive citizens of Anderson, and he and his associates may respond to the call for a handsome office building for Anderson.

The train will leave Williamston on the return trip at 6 o'clock in the afternoon.

A GREAT MEETING AT NEALS CREEK

Between June 1—Yesterday and Saturday were great days at Neal's Creek. On these days it was our pleasure to entertain the Union members of district No. 2. The writer heard many expressions after the meeting, and one of the best that he has ever heard of the best union meetings ever held in this section. Seven out of the ten churches comprising the union sent delegates. The people of this section were delighted to entertain the union, as was shown by the ample provisions they made for delegates and visitors. The crowd yesterday was very large, but the dinner was abundant.

Rev. R. G. Lee who preached the introductory sermon Saturday, deals with some of the essentials of real Christian character. This sermon was well received.

The discussion in the afternoon were helpful. Three of the appointed speakers were absent, their places being filled by Rev. Messrs. C. J. Hampton, R. G. Lee and H. W. Stone. "What should be the attitude of church members toward worldly amusements" was discussed by Rev. Messrs. J. B. Herron and C. J. Hampton. The speakers emphasized the importance of avoiding the appearance of evil, and showed how parents, by sanctioning and engaging in such worldly amusements as social card playing, dancing and the like, are calculated to lead their children into greater evil.

It was brought out in the discussion that a social card playing may lead to gambling and finally may cause the infuriated loser of a game to kill his successful rival, and thus bring sorrow and disgrace upon the family. Pure, practical home religion was prescribed as the only cure for worldliness in our churches.

Rev. R. G. Lee discussed clearly and helpfully the qualifications and duties of deacons, and Rev. H. W. Stone answered the question, "Should the deacon be ordained to serve for life?" According to the speaker, churches when convinced that their deacons are not faithfully discharging the duties of their office, should fraternally request their resignation. He did not consider it wise to elect deacons annually. Limited time prevented a general discussion of these queries, but the appointed speakers covered the ground satisfactorily. This report attempts merely to give a few points brought out.

In the absence of J. B. Hampton, the moderator of the Sunday school Union, his brother, C. J. Hampton, was appointed moderator pro tem. Reporters from the Sunday Schools developed nothing unusual. Rev. D. W. Hitt, host of the Union, was present, and made appropriate remarks, also deploring the fact that all the schools were not represented.

The Sunday school address was delivered by F. M. Burnett, secretary of the Anderson Y. M. C. A. Mr. Burnett spoke on the boy problem, and showed that youth is the time to enlist boys in the service of the King. He captured his audience from the first, and his address will, I believe, stimulate in our people greater interest in Sunday school work. We shall not attempt to report this address. Mr. Burnett has made a profound impression upon our people, and we sincerely hope he will visit us as often as his duties will permit.

The missionary sermon was preached by Rev. H. W. Stone, subject, the "Great Commission." The message was received with rapt attention, which may be said of all the addresses; and the preacher made a fine impression. A liberal offering for Home Missions followed the sermon. After announcements the congregation sang "Blest Be The Tie" and Pastor Hitt pronounced the benediction.

Following the choice of Mr. Brisey for president of the association, it was decided to empower him to appoint a secretary and treasurer of the league. An arbitration board, whose duty it shall be to settle all disputes and act as a board of directors for the organization was elected as follows: Porter A. Whaley of Anderson, Albert S.
